

'Don't Quote Me' | Uncovering The Voices Of The Future
Seen Displays
17th-19th September 2019

For their third consecutive year Seen Displays joins London Design Festival, this time bringing the voices of the consumer to the forefront, in their ongoing commitment to research and development across the retail landscape.

Through understanding the innate behaviours and opinions of the future generation, successful relationships are born from establishing trust and credibility. For brands to build an emotional attachment and secure a long-term bond with this generation, they need to look beyond their expected behaviours and uncover the insightful truths that are more often than not, misunderstood.

Seen Displays invite you to an immersive audible journey that uncovers the drivers influencing the consumer of today.

Visit their Instagram page (@SeenDisplays) to register your interest to participate in a number of insightful and diverse workshop sessions, where you will be encouraged to immerse yourself into the mindset of the consumer.
