

MAYA MAGAL

LONDON

Maya Magal: Jewellery Workshop Masterclasses

Always had an interest in jewellery and dreamed of making your own piece? Perhaps you're keen to learn a new skill? Now is the time! Sit down with the jewellers at Maya Magal London and learn to become a jewellery maker in one of our workshop Masterclasses.

Throughout London Design Festival, the jewellery-makers behind Maya Magal will be taking to the workbenches of our Coal Drops Yard store. There will be live demonstrations, interactive workshops and an opportunity to go behind-the-scenes to explore the traditional techniques we use to create our contemporary designs. We will take you on the creative journey from a hand-drawn sketch to a handmade piece and everything in-between, giving you the opportunity to come away with your own pieces to keep.

The Masterclasses will include a range of group workshops focusing on different jewellery-making techniques as well as the chance to book 1:2:1 bespoke design consultations. We will also be hosting a series of live drop in demonstrations throughout the week. Whether you're an expert or a novice, there is a Masterclass ideal for everyone.

The timetable with the full list of workshops will be available soon.

About the brand

We believe in using traditional techniques to make contemporary jewellery designs. Whether a birthstone necklace or a bespoke engagement ring, we create limited-edition pieces made by hand and designed to spark inspiration every day. Our founder Maya spent years learning the ins and outs of design in Hatton Garden, before opening a creative studio to hone her own style. Today she has three hubs across London where her team are constantly bringing new ideas to life.

It's here that we invite our customers to experiment and play with Maya Magal – stacking, layering and mixing metals. We want our jewellery to continue to inspire our customers, and to remind them to look for creativity in the everyday.
